READING LIST

MA & PhD

The most essential readings, required for all MA candidates, are listed in bold type. MA candidates also should consult those additional readings dealing with their interests in a specific topic, theme, aspect, or sub-genre of theatre. PhD candidates should have a broader familiarity with the additional readings as well as a deeper understanding of them.

In consultation with the faculty area specialist, candidates can modify the list or substitute readings according to any specific interest they might have.

Primary Dramatic Texts

Candidates can use dramatic texts studied in other area courses (historical period, culture, francophone, etc.), but they should have a good grasp of the historical and aesthetic evolution of the dramatic text (and its performance potential) from the seventeenth century to the present. A knowledge of at least one or two texts by the following dramatic authors is strongly suggested:

Molière (Le Misanthrope? Tartuffe? Dom Juan is required!), Corneille (L'Illusion comique? Le Cid? Horace?), Racine (Britannicus? Bérénice? Phèdre is required!), Marivaux (La Dispute? Le jeu de l'amour et du hasard is required!), Beaumarchais (Le Barbier de Séville? Le Mariage de Figaro?), Hugo (Hernani? Ruy Blas?), de Musset (On ne badine pas avec l'amour? Lorenzaccio?), Rostand (Cyrano de Bergerac is required!), Jarry (Ubu Roi is required!), Cocteau (La Machine infernale is required), Anouilh (L'Alouette? Antigone?), Camus (Caligula?), Sartre (Huis clos is required!), Genet (either Les Bonnes or Le Balcon is required!), Beckett (En attendant Godot and Fin de partie are required!), Ionesco (Rhinocéros? Le roi se meurt?), Nathalie Sarraute (Pour un oui ou pour un non is required!) Michel Vinaver (La Demande d'emploi? L'Emission de télévision? Les Travaux et les jours is required!), Bernard-Marie Koltès (Dans la solitude des champs de coton? Combat de nègres et de chiens is required!).

1789, Le Théâtre du Soleil, Ariane Mnouchkine (videotape) is required.

Francophone: Aimé Césaire (Either La Tragédie du roi Christophe or Une saison au Congo or Une tempête? is required!) and Simone Schwartz-Bart (Ton beau capitaine?)
